Rain, Rain, Go Away

The Philippines has officially entered the rainy season. The joke here is there are two seasons: hot and rainy. The picture of me in the river was taken on the way to preach in a church "off the beaten path". The water was up due to the rain the night before and there was no ferry or boat to use. We were almost dry by preaching time!

A few weeks later I drove my motorcycle through a downpour. It was a minor flash flood, but some areas were up past my shoes. Not a very pleasant experience. My light gray slacks look dark gray when soaked! Needless to say, I now have a raincoat and rain pants, as I'm sure it won't be the last time I'm caught in the rain.

The problem with the rainy season is the flooding and typhoons can be quite destructive. Homes can be damaged and lives can even be lost as a result of the storms and resulting flooding. Please keep our Filipino brothers and sisters in your prayers.

Best Way to End A Month

June 30th, we preached for Pastor Bunog in Pasay. After the text was read, we prayed and the Holy Ghost moved very strong. Within minutes, Nora Pacho was speaking in another language, and it wasn't Tagalog! She has been taught Bible Studies by Pastor Bunog for three months. He and Trenton Bundy from Tulsa, OK first contacted her during the Tulsa Youth Trip in April of this year. This was her first time to attend service but I don't think it will be her last. She left church with that signature Holy Ghost smile!

We are thankful for the way God moved and encouraged the Pasay church in that service. Please continue to pray for Southeast Asia that God would stir hungry souls.
